Our Town Nov. 1, 2012

Only 25 and Tim felt he was in a whole second life. He, alone, had to take care of 16-month-old Hazel as a single Dad for the next three days. Three days could be 30 diapers that would need changing. Could be more than 30. He shuddered.

That morning, Tim's wife Gretchen left town on business. There was no question but that she should go – even if that meant leaving Tim with the baby.

Gretchen had the real job with real pay and good benefits— she had to dress up, travel on business and make sure she had an admired cell phone model (she was in tech).

When they were first married and Gretchen was in school, Tim had the job and there was no baby - that's what he now thought of as his first life. Back then, Tim had a retail gig, which was fine and paid okay, as long as it was just Tim and Gretchen. No benefits, but they were healthy. Tim would have preferred working outside building things, but retail was fine. Until the store closed.

For a while Tim felt sorry for himself. Gretchen felt sorry for him, too. It was she who suggested he take some construction training and raise the whole family up another economic notch. Hazel generated a lot of bills and whole slew of new worries. And she generated a lot of dirty diapers that needed changing.

After Tim graduated from the training program, he put the word out with friends and filled out applications all over Our Town. But there were no jobs for him that were outside and involved building things. Tim had really liked the idea of moving the family up a notch. But they were stuck in the same notch.

Tim had even complained to the Soupster a day earlier, as the two chatted while waiting for milkshakes. The Soupster agreed that Gretchen had to go and leave Hazel with Tim. Normally an angelic child, Hazel had decided to test her father's mettle the minute Gretchen's plane took off skyward.

A list too long to make (and who wants to castigate an innocent child?) but Hazel's transgressions were many. Tim felt himself losing his grip on his second life. He also was losing his grip on a seriously soiled diaper. The phone rang.

Cindy at the placement office for the training program said there was a big project coming up that would require a lot of people who liked building things outside.

The employer had Tim's resume and the program's recommendation, and Tim should expect a phone call from the employer shortly.

This was a notch-raising opportunity.

Tim celebrated by opening a brand new package of baby wipes. Hazel picked up the vibe and stopped being such a little poop. Gretchen would be home before long. Hooray, second life!

Like to write an Our Town? It must be 450-500 words long & closely connected with the life of Sitkans. The Soupster must make an appearance in the story – even minor. If we run your story, we will pay $50. To submit: Email the story to: shop@sitkasoup.com and put "Our Town" in the Subject line. Or call 747-7595.

In celebration of Native American Heritage Month, the Sheldon Jackson Museum will sponsor a series of Alaska Native art activities for students in grades 2-5 from 1-3pm each Saturday throughout the month of November. These youth activities will explore Alaska Native cultures through hands-on activities and studying the museum's exhibits. Session will include: Nov. 3, Tlingit button blankets; Nov. 10, Athabascan birch bark baskets; Nov. 17 Aleut doll with gut parka and visor; Nov. 24 Innupiat Snow Goggles. During the final session students will also have the opportunity to use

"I may be new to Sitka, but Sitka's not new to me"

-Rep. Bill Thomas

For years, Sen. Bert Stedman, Rep. Peggy Wilson and Rep. Bill Thomas have worked together as a team to take care of Sitka's needs.

Now Peggy has been reassigned to a new district and she has endorsed Bill for her old seat. As co-chair of the most powerful committee in the Legislature, Bill will be able to work even harder for Sitka.

With Bill and Bert's clout on the House and Senate Finance Committees, the pair has successfully funded almost $100 million of vital projects for Sitka:

- » $49 million, Blue Lake Hydro Project
- » $22.5 million, Sawmill Creek Road
- » $18 million, Halibut Point Road
- » $2.9 million, Sitka street paving
- » $4.25 million, ANB Harbor
- » $2.9 million, Vocational Education Center
- » $1.2 million, Community Hospital roof replacement

Don't settle for pledges, promises and lesser committee assignments. Vote for a continued leadership position and let Bill Thomas deliver what Sitka needs!

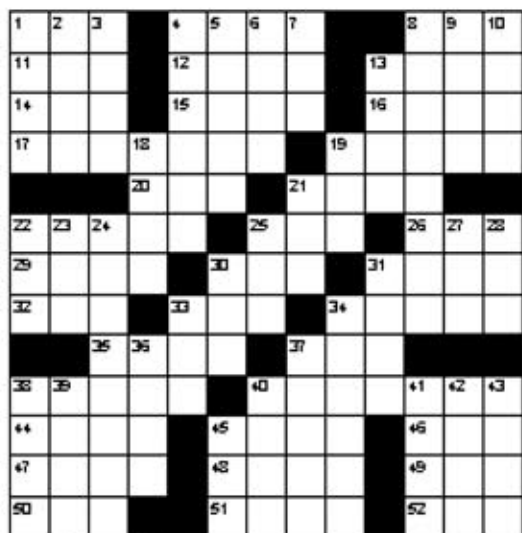

Keep Bill Thomas working for Sitka. Vote experience.
