Our Town April 10, 2014

The Soupster discovers the secret to aging gracefully

Living in Our Town as he did, the Soupster had experienced many, many rains in his lifetime. Nevertheless, he hadn't seen a rain quite as intense as the one that had been showering Our Town for three long days now.

The Soupster stared morosely out of his car as he rolled down his street, fat raindrops hurling themselves onto his windows. Even before the rain, he'd been having a miserable week. He kept finding gray hairs in his hairbrush, he could see more wrinkles on his face every time he looked in the mirror and he'd forgotten the names of three people that he'd talked to today alone. He'd never thought of himself as the type to be paranoid about aging, but he couldn't stop worrying.

As he turned into his driveway, a small figure – wearing a hot pink raincoat and dancing vigorously - caught his eye. Stepping hard on the brakes, the Soupster unbuckled his seatbelt and leaped out of the car.

As he got out, he could hear the figure's high, clear voice joyfully yodeling, "-rious feeling, I'm hap-hap-happy ag- Oh, hi, Uncle Soupster!" The freckled face of Winter, his nine-year-old niece, grinned at him, brown curls poking out from under her raincoat's hood.

"Winter, what are you doing here?" the Soupster asked.

"I'm staying with you while my parents are on vacation, remember, Uncle Soupster?" Winter told him, speaking slowly and carefully.

"I know that!" the Soupster exclaimed, exasperated. He wasn't that far gone yet. "I mean, why are you dancing in the driveway?"

Winter shrugged. "I was inside, and I was bored, and I've heard about dancing in the rain, so I decided to try it, and it's really fun! Do you wanna do it with me?"

"Thanks, but no thanks," the Soupster replied, heading for his front door, eager to get out of the rain. "I'm a bit too old for that."

"Aw, c'mon, Uncle Soupster!" Winter blocked his way, her big eyes staring at him pleadingly. "Mom says you're never too old to have fun!"

Her words struck a chord in the Soupster. Out of the mouths of babes, he thought. Lately, he'd been wallowing in self-pity about getting older, but there was really nothing he could do about the aging process. All he could do was try to age gracefully - and enjoyably.

"Well, I'm sorry, Winter, but I just can't do it."

Her smile wilted, but lit up when he added, "Not without my raincoat!"

Laughing, he raced into the house and returned wearing his trusty slicker. The merry duo then proceeded to dance enthusiastically and loudly belt out every rain-related song they could think of. They filed inside an hour later, exhausted and soaked to the skin, but happy.

Winter was right, the Soupster thought, as they sipped at their steaming mugs of hot chocolate and watched the raindrops roll down the windows. You're never too old to have fun!

Local Foods

The Sitka Local Foods Network education committee wants to help families in Sitka learn how easy it can be to grow some of their own food. We are looking for two families of novice gardeners who want to learn about and try vegetable gardening in their own backyard through our new Family Garden Mentor project. Through a series of six or seven workshops that will be held at the families' homes, Sitka Local Foods Network volunteers will help the families: Choose a location for a vegetable bed Build a raised bed, and acquire soil and soil amendments, Plant 2-4 easy-to-grow plants, Learn to take care of their plants over the summer — teaching how to care for and pick the vegetables (Cook a meal using the vegetables they have grown. The Network will provide all materials — soil, lumber, seeds, etc. — free to the participating families. Families will be expected to provide the labor and enthusiasm for gardening. Interested families must meet four requirements: 1) they must be first-time vegetable gardeners (this project is meant to help people who are just starting to garden), 2) they must want to try vegetable gardening and be committed to participating throughout the summer, 3) they must own their own property, and 4) they must agree to let others come and attend classes at their property. Families that are not selected will be placed on a waiting list in the hope of future continuation and expansion of this project. Families interested in participating should contact Michelle Putz at 747-2708 and provide a name, address, and contact phone number. Ad#36353

A smart start & a good finish go together.

Consider starting your first year of college in Sitka!

At the University of Alaska Southeast, Sitka Campus, we focus on these ingredients of student success:

- Full academic accreditation ... our credits for GER courses are accepted at most colleges.
- Excellent professors who care, AND have time for you.
- Outstanding academic advisors.
- Free tutoring, plus excellent study opportunities with friends who are taking the same classes.
- Much lower costs. A Sitka Start will give you a full year of college for only about $6,000. That's a savings, in most cases, of between $15,000 and $30,000. And we'll work with you to find grants and scholarships to save even more.

To find out more, talk to our Student Success Center advisors. And remember: a good start is the most important ingredient for success in college ... and life.

and the Russian Bishop's House, meeting and greeting visitors, assisting with educational and outreach programs, roving the trails, and working with the historic garden. The ideal candidate will be friendly and professional and excited about meeting and interacting with visitors from all over the world. This year, the park will also be hosting a new full-time Sales Associate Volunteer in conjunction with our cooperating association, Alaska Geographic. The sales associate is responsible for the day-to-day operations bookstores at both the visitor center and the Russian Bishop's House. A stipend is available for this position. We are also recruiting volunteers to participate in the Parkwatch Program.Volunteers will rove the trails, greet visitors and report potential hazards to law enforcement officers. All volunteer positions are uniformed and uniforms will be provided. Interested applicants should contact Becky Latanich at 747-0132 or becky_latanich@nps.gov.
