Our Town Nov. 20, 2014

Previously published 11/20/03

"Why is it such a pleasure," asked Sue, strolling downtown alongside the Soupster, "to shop on a tax-free day?"

She and the Soupster each toted several plastic bags emblazoned with the logos of Our Town merchants. Sue swung her bags happily on the crowded sidewalk, and one shopper had to make a last-minute correction to avoid being bopped.

"I know what you mean," said the Soupster, steering Sue safely by a "Clothing Specials Galore" sign outside a woman's shop. "The sales tax is only 5 percent. Yet it feels so good to avoid paying it."

"I mean, if a store offered a "5 percent off" sale, I wouldn't even get off my duff," Sue said. "Nothing below 20 percent off even gets my attention. Yet here I am grabbing stuff like crazy."

"What makes our 'tax-phobia' even stranger is that we all benefit from the money we pay in taxes," said the Soupster. "I mean nobody likes taxes. But in order for Our Town to function as an organized society, paying taxes is the way we've chosen to have people chip in for the common good. Snow plowing, school books, sanitation..."

"Got to have sanitation," said Sue.

"Gotta have it," the Soupster echoed. "Well, Sue, we solved that pesky tax question. What else is strange and wonderful in your life?"

"You want strange -- how about this?" she asked. "I wanted to buy a bicycle, so I called three people who advertised in the newspaper. None of the three was home and I got their three answering machines."

The Soupster discusses No Tax Day and solves the mystery of a recurring voice

"What's strange about that?" asked the Soupster.

"All three answering machines had the same voice," said Sue. "Then I called another friend to tell him how spooked I was. His answering machine had exactly the same voice!"

This was a good mystery for the Soupster. Was there anybody offering narration services for answering machine messages in Our Town? Couldn't be. Some very odd burglar? Probably not. Someone who lived in three different apartments and was selling bikes out of each of them? Impossible!

The Soupster groaned with the mental effort, then looked at the store nearby and a satisfied smile stretched across his face.

"Kind of official-sounding male's voice?" the Soupster asked. "Neutral accent?"

"How did you know?" Sue asked.

"Mystery solved!" said the Soupster. He took Sue by the arm and turned her gently toward the window of the store, which sold electronics. "20 % Off -- Answering Machine Sale Ends Today!" trumpeted a big banner.

"The bike-sellers all bought the same model answering machine," he went on. "What you heard was the voice that came pre-recorded with that model of machine. Your friend must have bought a new machine, too."

"I live for conundrums," the Soupster said, mostly to himself.

"Now that's really strange," said a grinning Sue. "And kind of wonderful!"

Sitka Local Foods Fundraiser One of the key elements of the Sitka Local Foods Network's efforts to bring more locally grown food to Sitka each year is the crops we grow at St. Peter's Fellowship Farm, a communal garden behind St. Peter's By The Sea Episcopal Church that produces food for the Sitka Farmers Market, local school lunch programs, and other venues. This month, the Sitka Local Foods Network is hosting a special projects fundraiser on the website Razoo.com to try and raise $2,400 to be used for improvements at St. Peter's Fellowship Farm. "The SLFN is excited to launch our first foray into crowd sourcing," Sitka Local Foods Network board president Lisa Sadleir-Hart said. "We can't think of a better way to raise funds for our successful St. Peter's Fellowship Farm and our extension garden at Pat Arvin's. Our lead gardener, Laura Schmidt, together with our local food interns, have continued to guide us towards increased food production which we've then moved into the community. Please help us support this deliciously nourishing project with a donation of $10 to $100 to $1,000 and keep food production growing in Sitka." St. Peter's Fellowship Farm was the brainchild Bonnie Elsensohn, the wife of the church's former rector. The church had recently removed a large tree behind the See House, and Bonnie thought the open space would be the perfect spot for a communal garden. In the spring of 2008 she contacted Lisa Sadleir-Hart and Doug Osborne, who were board members of what became the Sitka Local Foods Network, suggesting they make a presentation to the church vestry asking that the site become a place to grow vegetables for the new Sitka Farmers Market. Wood from the felled tree was used to make the first five garden beds, and enough crops were grown to support three Sitka Farmers Markets later that summer. Now St. Peter's Fellowship Farm is 1,600 sf and produces enough produce for six Sitka Farmers Markets, a garden stand at the Chelan Produce events during summer, a garden stand at the Running of the Boots, sales to school lunch programs, and more. This is the first crowd-funding event hosted by the Sitka Local Foods Network, and we chose to use Razoo.com because it has tailored its program for nonprofit organizations. It is similar to other crowd-funding sites, such as Kickstarter.com, Indiegogo.com, or GoFundMe.com, but the service charges are lower on Razoo.com for organizations that have an official 501(c)(3) nonprofit status. The Sitka Local Foods Network is hoping to raise $2,400 in this campaign, which ends on Friday, Dec. 5. To learn more about the project and to contribute, click this link and follow the prompts on the page. You also can click on the St. Peter's Fellowship Farm photo in the right column of our main website page and it will take you directly to the fundraiser link. Ad#766545

Opportunity for artists to explore the concepts of personal and community wellness "What does wellness mean to you? The Greater Sitka Arts Council and the Sitka Health Summit invite artists of all disciplines to create a donation piece inspired by the concepts of personal and community wellness. This unique opportunity will launch with your work placed in a local business for one week for viewing, and will culminate with a silent auction with artists setting the minimum bid. Funds raised will benefit the Arts Council, the Health Summit, and the artists themselves. The auction will be part of the Arti-Gras celebration in March 2015. Donations will be accepted through Feb. 1. For more information, contact Sarah at 738-5234 or Melissa at 738-0462. Ad#101543

Open enrollment for health insurance begins in November Now is the time to begin planning to sign up for affordable health insurance for 2015. Open enrollment in the Health Insurance Marketplace begins November 15th. Those that have already signed up for insurance through the Marketplace will have through Dec 15 to make changes to their coverage. There may be additional plans available and different prices, so it is recommended that even those satisfied with their current plan browse through the options. Changes to current plans will go into effect January 1, 2015. Additionally, those already insured through the Marketplace are being required to change their password on the Healthcare.gov website for security reasons. Insured individuals may also have been sent a letter requesting more information. It is important to respond right away, as insurance coverage may be cancelled if all required documents are not received by the due date on the letter. For those that have not yet signed up for health insurance, the open enrollment period is Nov 15, to Feb 15, 2015. Anyone that did not have health insurance in place during the 2014 calendar year will be required to pay a tax

HELICOPTER PILOT

Pilots guide airplanes, helicopters and ships, the same as the drivers of cars. Airplane pilots must study in a classroom before they fly a plane • Alaska has many pilots because it has many airplanes and ships • Pilot whales got their name because they travel in pods that seem to have a leader, or pilot.
