Our Town May 4, 2017

Originally published May 6, 2004

"Soupster!" called Joey the Liar from the far side of the street. Joey was so named because everything he said was a lie.

"I've been looking all over for you," said Joey as he sidled his big frame next to the Soupster. "I was worried I would miss you."

"Hi, Joey," said the Soupster, who knew Joey was tough to deal with, everything he said being a lie. "What are you doing these days?"

"Same, but different," said Joey. "Once in a while."

"Have any plans for the weekend?"

"I thought I'd call my mother for Mother's Day and all," said Joey.

"She doesn't live here?" asked the Soupster.

"Reno," said Joey. "She's a stage star in the casinos. She could have gone to Vegas but she wanted my younger brothers and sisters to have a more normal life, which she has found in Reno."

"Is this true?" asked the Soupster.

"Not entirely," said Joey. "Before Reno, she lived with me in Chicago, where she was a meat cutter at a huge plant. All her skirts had blood dripping down the front of them.

The Soupster hears lies?

It was a long time before I found out that hamburgers didn't come out of my mother's pockets."

"Joey," I really don't have time for this," said the Soupster.

"All right, she's quite normal," Joey said. "She lives in Bothell and works in a bottling plant..."

"Joey! A Bothell bottler?" said an exasperated Soupster.

"Brunette, too," said Joey. "My mother is the spitting image of Betty Crocker and Donna Reed. She played the piano and there were always fresh flowers, even in winter. My favorite time was waking up Sunday mornings and smelling the bacon frying downstairs. Sticking my head out into the cool room from under the warm blanket. The smell of bacon."

The Soupster almost believed him. "I almost believe you, Joey," said the Soupster. Joey, who knew of his reputation, took no offense.

"I wouldn't want you to do that," he said.

"So, really," said the Soupster. "About your mother? You wax so poetic and range so far afield that you sound like a wistful orphan. Are you an orphan?"

"Absolutely not!" said Joey the Liar.

Like to write an Our Town? It must be 450-500 words long & closely connected with the life of Sitkans. The Soupster must make an appearance in the story – even if briefly. If we run your story, we'll pay you $50.

To submit: Email the story to shop@sitkasoup.com and put "Our Town" in the Subject line. Or call: 747-7595

Arts & Music

Festival Registration

Now Open! Sitka Arts & Science Festival July 22-28 & July 29-August 4, 2017 As busy adults, we often fail to make time for reflection, to think and feel deeply, and to challenge ourselves to see the world in new ways. Through the complementary lenses of art and science, and guided by an extraordinary group of artists and scientists, Sitka Arts and Science Festival participants will embark on a journey of learning and discovery. Immerse yourself in an intensive week-long workshop and experience our wilderness through guided excursions. Sponsored by Sitka Fine Arts Camp and the Sitka Sound Science Center, in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts. www.sitkafestival.org Ad#65058f

Once Upon a Time Sitka Studio of Dance Senior Recital Please come and watch the dancers as we present dances inspired by fairytales, myths, legends, and fables. The show begins at 6:30 pm Sat, May 13th at the Sitka Performing Arts Center. Classes include: Emerald Ballet, There will also be solos from four senior dancers: Tickets are $5 and available at Old Harbor Books and at the door. More information at <http://www.sitkastudioofdance.com> Ad#86158f

The Sitka Local Foods Network is creating a pool of volunteers to help us get the St. Peter's Fellowship Farm communal garden and our satellite gardens ready to grow food for the summer. St. Peter's Fellowship Farm is located behind St. Peter's By The Sea Episcopal Church (601 Lincoln St.). This communal garden is where we grow most of the produce sold at the Sitka Farmers Markets during the summer. an areas with the mission of growing healthy food, people and communities. If you want to help us prepare the garden for planting, amend soil, clean up the garden, and plant seeds, contact St. Peter's Fellowship Farm lead gardener Laura Schmidt at 738-7009 to let her know about your availability. During the spring, Laura usually is working in the garden most week days, and she's looking for a couple of assistants each day instead of hosting a big work party on the weekends. Ad#23758f

MISS APPLE FESTIVAL

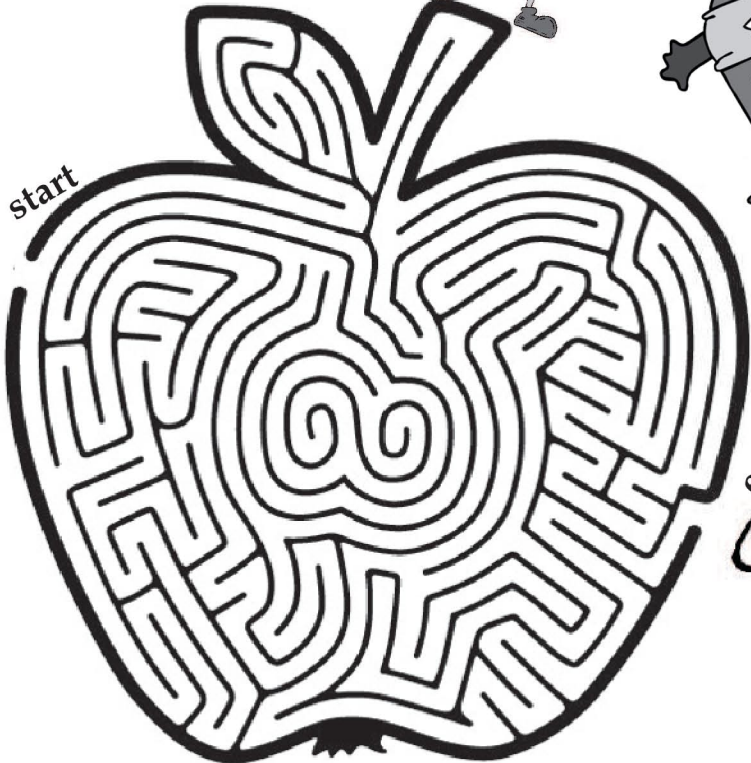

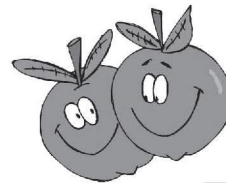

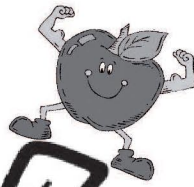

FRUIT ON THE APPLE TREE

BIG & LITTLE APPLES

Apples grow on trees that have pink or white blossoms • Apples are one of the most popular fruits in the world • There are more than 7,500 different kinds of apples grown around the world • Apples may be red, yellow, orange or green. China produces more apples than any other country • Small, sour crabapples were the only kind of apples that started in North America • Other kinds were brought here by European settlers • Apples range from a little bigger than a cherry to the size of a grapefruit • It takes about 36 apples to make a gallon of apple cider!
