Our Town July 13, 2017

Originally published July 15, 2010

A strong sun shone on the well-named Clement Climes, who was sitting on a folding chair scarfing a Hellfire Halibut Spicy Skewer at Santa's Seafood Truck downtown.

The Soupster noticed the pepper-induced sweat dripping off Clem's brow. "I prefer the Sweetly Rubbed Salmon," the Soupster said to his co-diner, simultaneously ordering the Rub.

"Paradise today," said the Soupster, as his salmon sizzled on the grill. He gazed at Our Town's gleaming water and green mountains. "Clem, you grew up here. Remind me of something wrong with this place."

Clem sucked a couple of ice cubes from his drink and crunched them against the wildfire in his mouth. "When folks leave, they really leave," he said in a jalapeño-choked voice. "Nobody ever moves a half hour or an hour away – how could they? They're gone. It's hard on the adults, but really hard on the kids."

"Once they leave the Our Town Bubble, they're gone," Clem concluded.

The Soupster retrieved his perfectly prepared salmon. "I feel like I'm leaving a bubble when I fly out of the country from the Lower 48," he told Clem, after a bite.

Discussing Our Town's flaws, the Soupster sees an old acquaintance

"I feel like when I'm overseas, I can no longer take it for granted that anything is going to make sense. Come to think of it, I feel that way about the Lower 48 now, too."

"But you hail from the Lower 48," said Climes. "How do you feel about being so far from your old stomping grounds?"

"Fine," said the Soupster, taking another bite. "I do miss people and never, ever expect to see anybody from there anymore."

That moment an extremely tall tourist walked right up to the Soupster and clamped his gigantic hand on the much shorter man's shoulder. "Soupster?" he asked.

"Chris Louie?" an amazed Soupster yelled up to him. "'Shrimp' Louie?"

"We went to the same high school," the enormous Shrimp explained to Clem.

Clem looked back and forth between the two men. "Soupster," he said, "I thought you got named Soupster in Our Town because you publish the Soup. You mean they called you Soupster all along? How did you get the name?"

Shrimp chuckled.

"That," said the Soupster, "is a whole story in itself."

Like to write an Our Town? It must be 450-500 words long & closely connected with the life of Sitkans. The Soupster must make an appearance in the story – even if briefly. If we run your story, we'll pay you $50.

To submit: Email the story to shop@sitkasoup.com and put "Our Town" in the Subject line. Or call: 747-7595

ONE BIG GRILLED CHEESE

KEVIN SPACEY AND A MOUNTAIN OF PBJ'S

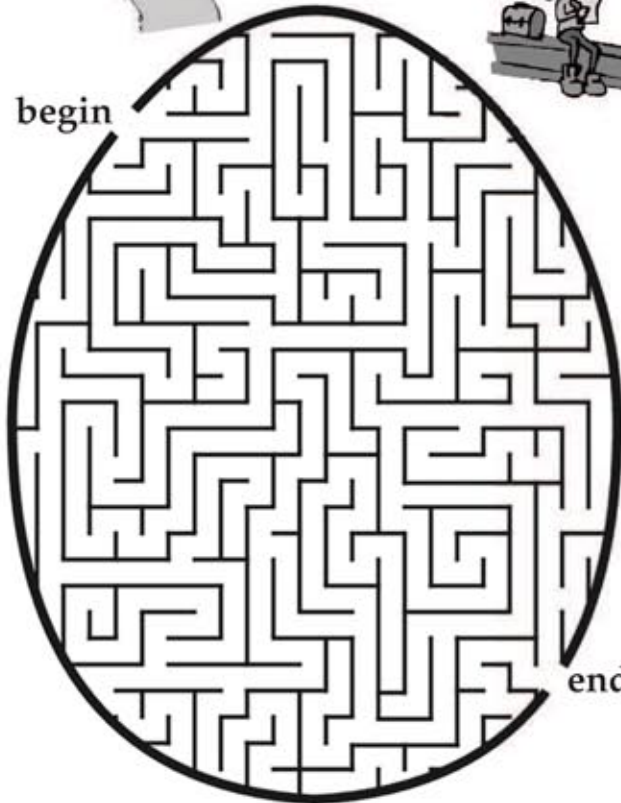

EARL OF SANDWICH

Sandwiches are made up of meat, veggies, cheese or spreads on two pieces of bread • Sandwiches are named after the Earl of Sandwich (1718-92), who asked for his lunch to be put on bread so he could keep playing a game • The Earl's present day family still sells sandwiches in England! • Ham sandwiches are the most popular among Americans • The world's biggest sandwich weighed more than 5,000 lbs • An attempt to make an even bigger sandwich failed when the crowds started eating it before the big sandwich could be measured.
