Our Town Sept. 7, 2017

The Soupster recounts how a good prop can save the day.

"Wild beard – check, rough clothes – check," said the Soupster to himself, as he stared at the large form of Granville Brickface standing at the coffee counter.

"Five shot venti Americano," boomed Granville in a bass impressive enough to literally blow back the barrista's hair (well, almost literally). Granville collected his potion and parked his bulk on the far side of the crowded coffee shop.

"Giant voice – check," the Soupster muttered.

Granville Brickface was not the biggest guy in Our Town, but – with his wild beard, rough clothes and giant voice -- he definitely took up the most space. Crowds seemed to part when he showed up. Dogs and birds went silent.

The Soupster remembered one time when a delicately-engraved invitation had arrived in Granville's mail, with multiple pages and tissue papers in between each page. Granville was distantly related to some pretty lofty Our Town residents of the past and was being invited to the wedding of the daughter of one of the loftiest present-day Our Town residents.

The invite had required serious cogitation on Granville's part. The guy was big, but not mean. He did not want to scandalize the ceremony with his usual "casual" garb, when the rest of the partygoers went formal. He did not want to do anything to rattle the nuptials. He would buy a suit.

"And get a haircut, for goodness sakes," Granville heard in his mother's voice inside his head. He decided he would do that, too.

But successful social engagements are not based solely on appearance, Granville had remembered. People are required to talk with one another. A problem, he thought, that was more enigmatic than a haircut.

The Soupster had suggested a strategy from his long-ago experience with dating. He told Granville to anticipate the questions people would ask of him and, like a politician readying for a debate, prepare polite answers and memorize them. So Granville did.

The morning of the wedding, Granville took his newly-shorn and freshly-laundered self to visit the elderly woman who lived next door, as a test run. Mrs. Cox was delighted with Granville's transformation.

"It's remarkable," she said. "I'm nearly not afraid of you."

"Do you think I'm ready?" Granville asked, purposely speaking in a low voice because of all the crystal glassware lining the breakfront shelves.

"Well," said Mrs. Cox, tapping one finger against her chin. "Maybe we can improve things a bit more."

"Princess Lorna Doone!" Mrs. Cox called out and her tiny, fluffy, impossibly cute Pomeranian yapped into the room.

"Take Princess with you, Granville," said Mrs. Cox. "Everybody loves Lorna!"

Granville did and Princess Lorna Doone earned her salt. All afternoon, Granville had a small crowd of people surrounding him, all wanting to pet and hold the dog. The memorized answers allowed Granville to appear almost charming.

And he got the best compliment of all when some cousin, taking in Granville's fresh haircut, crisp suit and tiny dog, said, "I didn't know Granville had a brother!"

Arts & Music

Jason Robert Brown's Drama Desk winner, The Last Five Years, is an emotionally powerful and intimate musical about two New Yorkers in their twenties who fall in and out of love over the course of five years. The show's unconventional structure consists of Cathy, the woman, telling her story backwards while Jamie, the man, tells his story chronologically; the two characters only meet once, at their wedding in the middle of the show. The show is Friday, September 22 at 7pm & Saturday, September 23 at 7pm, Odess Theater. Tickets are $20 general, $15 for youth. This show contains mature content. Featuring Rhiannon Guevin as Cathy, Samuel Faustine (samuelfaustine.com) as Jamie, and Robert Fleitz (robertfleitz.com) on piano. Zeke Blackwell directs. Ad#9359a4

The Sheldon Jackson Museum's September Artifact(s) of the Month is a pair of Yup'ik smoked moose hide slippers. They are children's size and have white hide soles crimped at the toe and heel with a single piece of smoked moose hide uppers sewn with a welted seam up the back and decorated with seed beads. The slippers were not collected by Sheldon Jackson but by Moravian missionaries, one of several denominations Jackson influenced to come to Alaska in the late 19th century. The September Artifact will be exhibited until Sept 30. General admission is $7, $6 for seniors, and free for those 18 and under or members of either the Friends of the Sheldon Jackson Museum or Friends of the Alaska State

Falls are frequent, they can happen to anyone and for older Americans they are the leading cause of fatal and non-fatal injuries. That's why Sitka Community Hospital is celebrating Fall Prevention Awareness week Sept 18-22. Each day will focus on a different prevention strategy. Monday's theme is preventing falls outdoors. Tuesday's theme is preventing falls indoors. To schedule a free first come first serve home assessment on 8/19 call Doug Osborne at 747-0373 or go to sitkahospital.org. On Wed, Sept 20 the Health Promotion Department at Sitka Community Hospital is offering a free strength and balance class, with instructor Emily Riley, from 10-11 am at Hames Center. All are invited to attend a falls prevention lunch and learn, the first mini workshop will be at the Sitka Community Hospital classroom on Thurs, Sept 21, noon-1pm. Lesley Thompson from the AK Commission on Aging will speak. The second lunch and learn, a repeat of the SCH class, will be at the Swan Lake Senior Center from 11:30am-12:30pm on Fri, Sept 22, Fall Prevention Bingo with prizes will be the featured activity. For more information contact Doug , at 747-0373. Ad#72559a

Violence will offer free training on recognizing and dealing with interpersonal violence and abuse. SAFV staff members and local professionals will present thirteen sessions starting Sept 9 and continuing through the 30th. The schedule is available at www.safv.org. Those interested may attend any or all sessions at the Unitarian Fellowship Hall, 408 Marine St. If you have any questions or would like to receive the schedule in the mail or through email, please call 747-3370. The Sheldon Jackson Museum in Sitka is recruiting for on-call Museum Protection & Visitor Services Assistants (MPVSAs) who will work a sporadic and irregular schedule as needed beginning September 19. This position supports museum public education, sharing and safeguarding Alaska's cultural heritage. The incumbents will perform a combination of duties associated with assisting the public in the galleries including: admission-taking, interpreting the collection both informally and by providing short highlights tours, and assisting with youth activities to help share the collection with young visitors. Incumbents will perform administrative tasks such as compiling statistics, as well as museum-specific tasks such as object handling and shipping, receiving and tracking items. In addition, they will perform facility-related security and safety functions such as routine checklist patrols and monitoring security cameras to protect the collection from theft and vandalism. Incumbents must be able to stand and walk for several hours each day. Open to Alaska residents only. Closing date is Sept. 21 at 5pm. Short term non-permanent position. $19.39/hr. Contact Mary Irvine by email at mary.irvine@alaska.gov. Application materials can be found online or by calling 800-587-0430.
