The truth is, the Soupster was already in a terrible mood when he stopped at the store on his way home. And when he walked from his car to the front door of the supermarket, the Soupster made the mistake of looking up at the big roadside message board. He froze, muttered to himself and jumped to conclusions.

"Don't," the sign read and the Soupster, absurdly, took the message personally.

"Don't what?" he growled. "Just spewing negativity with complete abandon? Typical. That's the trouble with the world. Everywhere it's 'Don't!'"

The Soupster took hold of the door handle, but then let go of it, took a step back and turned to face the sign. Like a person with one of those cell-phone earpieces, he spoke to the air.

"Look at that," he said, his voice loud enough for passersby to hear, and pointing to the empty ladder up to the road sign. "Nobody is even there! They just put 'Don't!' in your face and then they walk away – probably on one of their frequent breaks. 'Don't what?' I'd like to know."

The Soupster stopped spouting long enough to see a woman carrying a grocery bag give him a pitying stare and a wide berth.

Inside the store, he tried to ignore the "0 trans fat" and "Gluten free" signs. The "fortified with Omega-3" and "Acidophilous added" did not make him feel any more positive. A funk is a funk.

The Soupster tried to raise his spirits by remembering a pretty little city park he had once come across during travels in the Lower 48. A sign at the entrance had said: "Picnic, fly a kite, rollerblade, sunbathe, jog, dance" and so on. All the things you were supposed to do, instead of the "No dogs!" and "Keep Out!"

The Soupster wonders if someone is pulling his leg.

And his mood did lighten, buoyed as well by the checker's friendly interest in what he was buying. But when the Soupster walked out the door, he saw the road sign had changed.

"Don't Go Home," it now said.

The Soupster got back into his car, stunned. "Don't Go Home?" He was going home. Until now, he had been perturbed. But on the road back to his house, the Soupster felt angry.

"What kind of sick joke is that store playing on people?" "Is it even possible the sign was meant specifically for me?" "Why shouldn't I go home?" The Soupster's mind raced.

Two doors from his house, the Soupster pulled over to the side of the road. "Even if the sign has nothing to do with me, it is irresponsible to make people wonder if something is wrong at their home," the Soupster stewed.

"That's mean," he decided and turned his car around in the direction of the store. The Soupster wasn't sure who he was going to talk to or what he was going to say to them, but he was going to say something to somebody to straighten the responsible parties right out!

But as he neared the store, he realized at once that he would do none of that. For the sign had changed again.

Now it read: "Don't Go Home Until You Try One of Our New Mango Shakes!"

Mt. Edgecumbe Hospital keeps newborns safe with Hugs and Kisses®

Implementation of Hugs Wi-Fi Infant Protection Solution along with its Kisses Mother/Infant Matching provides additional security, increased safety, and improved patient experience Mt. Edgecumbe Hospital (MEH) recently installed and deployed the Hugs Wi-Fi Infant Protection solution, along with the matching mother/infant component of the Hugs system; Kisses® Mother as an additional layer of security in its Labor and Delivery Department. The Hugs technology is a comprehensive infant security system that protects newborns against the risk of abduction not only in the Labor and Delivery Department but anywhere in the hospital covered by Wi-Fi. Each infant wears a tiny Hugs Wi-Fi tag on his or her ankle attached with a special tamper-detecting band. Protection of the baby begins immediately once the tag is attached. The Hugs system provides some unique benefits including hospital-wide infant security by monitoring all exits. The status and location of infants can be tracked anywhere within the hospital's Wi-Fi coverage, and exits remain protected even if communication to the hospital's server is temporarily interrupted. And, infants detected outside the Labor and Delivery unit with no record of a staff member transporting the baby to another area of the hospital automatically triggers an alarm. MEH also added the Kisses® component of the Hugs system to match newborn babies to their mothers automatically to further augment security for each infant. Each mother receives a Kisses tag which is programmed to be "bonded" with her baby's Hugs tag to wear around her wrist. Whenever the two tags meet anywhere in the hospital, the Hugs tag checks for a proper match to the individually programmed Kisses® tag worn by the baby's mother.

Ed. Note: Classified Ads & PSAs often are edited in the printed Soup, but the full ad or PSA is listed online. See Ad#s at the end of nearly all the ads.

When a match is verified, the tags make a specific sound letting staff know the infant is with his or her mother. Charles Clement, SouthEast Alaska Regional Health Consortium President, and CEO said, "SEARHC takes our patients' safety, security, and protection seriously, and protecting the infants born at Mt. Edgecumbe Hospital is critically important. Providing Hugs and Kisses as an additional safeguard to the newborns in our care is just one of the recent upgrades we have implemented at MEH, and our staff continues to seek innovative solutions, educational opportunities, and technology to advance the medical care and experience we provide to our patients." ✚ SITKA COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

SITKA COMMUNITY HOSPITAL WELCOMES SURGEON DONOVAN BLAND, MD.

Dr. Bland will be practicing the month of March 2018.

Dr. Donovan Bland, board certified general surgeon, became a physician because it allows him to help others. He chose General Surgery because it was a surgeon who helped Dr. Bland's mother become a breast cancer survivor.

His philosophy is if you take good care of people, they will come back to you. He is committed to doing the best he can and doing what is right for the patient.

Dr. Bland treats his patients as he would want his family treated and believes this comes across to his patients through his care.

As a surgeon, he uses minimally invasive techniques whenever appropriate. These "laparoscopic" procedures use small holes instead of large incisions which typically mean less pain and scarring for the patient.

In his free time, Dr. Bland likes to hike with his dogs, enjoys making and flying kites, restoring furniture, water color painting and photography.

Top 10 Reasons to Hire a Realtor®

#2 of 10: Client — Realtor Relationship

"In 2016, 88% of buyers purchased their home through a real estate agent or broker, and 73% of those buyers said they would use the same agent again. The relationship between a client and Realtor lasts not only through the transaction, but can be a continuing business bond."

Local Food

Do you think you have a great idea for a food business or product from Sitka? The Sitka Local Foods Network is launching the inaugural Sitka food business innovation contest in an effort to spark local food entrepreneurs so we can make more local food available to residents and visitors. This contest will provide two $1,500 kicker prizes — one for established food businesses and one for start-up businesses (no older than two years) — to help entrepreneurs launch or expand their food businesses. The contest is open to food businesses and individuals making and selling food products in Sitka. All food business ideas must be geared toward getting more locally grown, harvested and/or produced food into the Sitka marketplace through sales in grocery stores, the Sitka Food Co-Op, the Sitka Farmers Market, restaurants, or individual marketing (such as a community supported agriculture/CSA or community supported fisheries/CSF program). sell at the market through St. Peter's Fellowship Farm, and provided a garden education program to residents. Participants in this contest are eligible and encouraged to enter other food business innovation contests, such as the Path To Prosperity or Symphony of Seafood contests. All participants retain the proprietary rights to their products and ideas. This contest is open to new and existing food businesses in Sitka. Student businesses (such as those fostered by Junior Achievement or similar programs) are welcome. There is a small $25 entry fee for this contest. All participants (business and individual) must complete and submit our contest entry form by 5 p.m. on Friday, April 6, 2018 (by snail mail so it arrives before the deadline to Sitka Local Foods Network, Food Business Innovation Contest Entries, 408-D Marine Street, Sitka, Alaska, 99835, or by email with the Subject Line of "Food Business Innovation Contest Entries" to sitkalocalfoodsnetwork@gmail.com). Submitting a business plan (up to 20 pages) is recommended, but not required. Our entry form will have room for you to describe your food business idea in a few paragraphs, but submitting a business plan will give you more room to outline your plans for funding and marketing the idea and will help your overall score. Judging will be based on how your food business idea provides new local food options in Sitka, how novel is your food business idea, how Oranges are one of the most popular fruits in the US • Smudge pots produce smoke that helps keep oranges warm on cold nights • In earlier times, sailors on long voyages used to get sick because they had no foods with vitamin C • When they started to feed the sailors with lemons and limes, the sailors got well • Orange juice is one breakfast drink, along with coffee, tea & milk.
