Baranof Realty has been a part of this community for over 30 years and we have a long history of giving back. We've seen good times as well as bad. Right now, we see that times are a little tough. Although we live in one of the most beautiful and abundant places in all the world, some economic headwinds are keeping our community from reaching its full potential. In the long run, these headwinds will give way to a brighter and more prosperous future. In the meantime however, we need to pull together and help our neighbors. To do our part, Baranof Realty is offering a 2% real estate fee to help those sellers who don't mind doing a little of the work themselves. We can't offer our full complement of services at this rate, but we can do our part to better support our friends. Call for a free consultation and let us apply our experience to your benefit. The true art of the deal is not what you can't do, but rather what you are willing to do.

The Soupster copes with unpleasant memories

"You hate my dog!" Laura overheard through the library stack. "You revile my pooch."

Laura the Librarian, with an armful of books, turned the corner, "Soupster?" she said "Is that you?"

"Uh, oh," the Soupster said. "Was I talking out loud?"

"Something about dogs?" said Laura. "Something about hating dogs?"

The Soupster reddened. "I am a confirmed animal lover," he said guiltily. "I actually like dogs third best, right after cats and Australians."

"Then why did you say you hated your dog?" said Laura.

"It's just an expression I use to control my bad thoughts," the Soupster answered.

"Stay there," said Laura, as she tipped the books in her arms onto a nearby empty shelf. She smoothed her blouse and gave her shoulders and head a little shake. "Now," she said to the Soupster, "Tell me what on Earth you are talking about."

The Soupster looked around to see if anyone else was listening. "Well," he said, lowering his voice, "When I say, 'You hate my dog,' it really has nothing to do with dogs, or hatred, or even you, for that matter."

"You know, when a person has a memory of something that didn't turn out so well?" the Soupster went on. "And when they figure out what they should have done that would have worked out fifty times better? Or when they remember something somebody once said and only now can they think of the perfect thing they should have said back then?

"I don't have these problems," said Laura,

"Consider yourself lucky, then," said the Soupster. "But my mind sometimes gets locked in kind of negative territory. My saying, 'You hate my dog' breaks me loose."

"Tell me Soupster," said Laura. "how did you come up with saying you hate your dog... er... my dog? Oh, you know what I mean."

"Well," said the Soupster, "It started a long time ago with the old saying, 'Love me, love my dog.' That morphed into 'Hate me, hate my dog.' Finally, just, 'You hate my dog.'"

"Fascinating, your noggin," said Laura.

"Show me the noggin what ain't," said the Soupster.

"Well, your noggin, especially, ain't ain't," Laura said.

"You hate my dog!" said the Soupster.

"Wait just a minute," said Laura. "Didn't you just finish telling me that all this had nothing to do with me or dogs or hatred or dog hatred or anything?"

"Ooops," the Soupster said.
