ARTIST PROFILE

Jerrod Galanin was born in 1977. These days he lives with his wife Brit, nine-year-old Arya, ten-year-old Ruby and their four-month-old son. Their full house looks out over the ocean and other creatures who make their home on the ocean. That water and that wildlife are where Galanin gets much of his inspiration.

Galanin is the Sitka artist who designed the new logo for Brave Heart Volunteers.

How did the notion of designing a new logo for the beloved local organization come about? Galanin (who serves on the board of Brave Heart) says, "Originally, there was no idea of doing a new logo, I just wanted to create a design that BHV could use on shirts as a fundraising effort. They are celebrating their 20th anniversary this year and I thought maybe if we put the design on a shirt, they could sell the shirts to raise money."

But then, Brave Heart liked Galanin's design so much, they decided they wanted to use it as their new logo.

When asked about his artistic influences growing up, Galanin sites first and foremost his dad, Tlingit carver Dave Galanin.

"My dad was my mentor. Another important one was my uncle Will Burkhart. I learned a lot from them. And then, my great grandfather was George Benson (who designed the totem pole in Totem Square). Unfortunately, I did not really know him, since I was born just a year or so before he died.

How did Jerrod arrive at such a distinctive design for the logo?

JERROD GALANIN

"I liked the idea of a heart shape and I worked my formline into it. I also liked the idea of Raven and Eagle as lovebirds. Having both together represents a way to keep balance. I wanted to do something with a more contemporary feel – like depicting Raven and Eagle together – this is something that is not commonly done. And, also, having the bright colors. And, finally, I kind of snuck in 'BHV' into the negative space."

Jerrod says he really thinks the best way to learn about art is "through a mentorship, like I had with my dad and my uncle. Steve Brown is another person I worked with."

The young Galanin has worked in various media. Much of his work is engraved silver jewelry and there's some carving in wood. But, he says, "I am always trying new media – in the past year I've been doing a lot in pastels. Pastels can be really big and messy," he says. "With my son David being born in December," he says, "lately I have been grabbing my ipad and doing digital drawings."

And where can someone who's interested find examples of Jerrod's work? He has a show coming up in April at Seattle's Stonington Gallery. "There will be some drawings and pastel works on display there for the whole month. Then, there's my website jerrodgalanin.com, which shows different kinds of work I have done. The store in downtown Sitka (Galanin & Klein) has some of my work. And, of course, there is the 20th Anniversary celebration for Brave Heart, on April 17th. I've been a board member just since 2020, so I'm not terribly experienced, but I think it's a great organization and I am happy to be part of it."

DID YOU KNOW

That Alaska is the first state to offer Covid-19 vaccines to everyone over a certain age without prerequisites?

Anyone 16 years or older who lives or works in Alaska is eligible to receive a COVID-19 vaccine.

One Sitkan said, ‘The online sign-up was very easy. I got an appointment within a week. The nurse was so nice and skillful I didn’t even realize when she gave me the shot. I had a sore arm for maybe 12 hours. The second shot was pretty much the same, except less paperwork to fill out.’

Another Sitkan explained, ‘I was not nervous about getting the vaccination - our family were actually all anxious to get it. I called the phone line to make an appointment and got one right away. When I got there, the line moved quickly and it was a real, nice spaced-out place. My arm was just a little bit sore afterwards.’

According to a visiting surveyor and doctoral student, ‘When I started talking to people last fall before the vaccine was available, ~60% had some hesitation, but now they seem to be more relaxed and positive about the idea.’

Alaska is currently the most vaccinated state per capita. 67.6% of the State/IHS vaccine allocation so far has been administered.

to connect community members with consistent food assistance. If you are experiencing food insecurity and do not have access to Farmers-to-Families food boxes through another agency, visit sitkamutualaid.com or call 738-0357 to get on our delivery list. In the spring issue of Edible Alaska, a photo essay "Collective Care" by Lione Clare & Bethany Goodrich documents ways that Sitka "compassionately stepped up to ensure that friends, neighbors, and those most in need stayed nourished." The article mentions several projects SCS helped with - Sitka Mutual Aid, USDA Farmers to Families Distributions and Summer Meals Program, and the ANS/ANB Thanksgiving Dinner, and can be found at www.ediblealaska.com.

Food

Sitka Mutual Aid Continues - SCS' Sitka Mutual Aid Network is still distributing food boxes on Fridays as part of the USDA Farmer to Families program. Island Bus Co. provides contactless doorstep delivery of about 230 boxes of food between 9am and 4pm to households all over Sitka. SCS is grateful to partner with AC Lakeside

SITKA SOUP KIDS PAGE

Raingear History

Hats

A Sou'wester is a traditional form of collapsible oilskin rain hat longer in the back than in the front to protect the neck. A gutter front brim at the front keeps water away from the face.

A possible theory for the derivation of the name is to do with the Sou'wester wind which is the prevailing wind in the seas around the UK.

Grundens & other modern companies still make the Sou'wester.

Coats

In Ancient China stiff, thick rain capes were made of straw or grass. Around 1200 AD, Amazonians used the latex-like extract from rubber trees to waterproof their footwear & clothing. When Europeans arrived in 1700s & became aware of this waterproofing, they followed suit.

Chinese rain cape & skirt

British children in their Mackintosh raincoats, sou'wester rain hats, & rubber wellington boots.

Almost 200 years ago Scottish chemist Charles Macintosh sold the first waterproof rain coat. It is because of his innovation of waterproofed fabric that Mackintosh is referred to as the "inventor of rainwear."

"The Captain's Wife", a painting by Carl Sundt-Hansen (1895), nicely illustrates a sou'wester rain hat being worn in combination with an linseed oil impregnated raincoat.

Boots

Waterproof footwear first appeared in the early 1800s. The Duke of Wellington had his shoemaker modify his military boots & they've been known as Wellington boots, or "wellies".

Today the company still exists, and even makes boots for dogs! Other common names for rainboots are gumboots, mucking boots, billy boots and redbands.
