Hohner Instruments

Sitkans who wish to sample or hear about the dulcet tones of Hohner musical instruments don't have to go very far. Long time Sitka residents Gary Gouker and Michael Litman are both Hohner enthusiasts.

Hohner is a company founded in Germany by Matthias Hohner. The former clock maker began hand-crafting harmonicas in 1857 – that first year he turned out 650 of them! Harmonicas are still the company's best-known product, but in later years they have also manufactured accordions, recorder flutes, banjos, acoustic and electric guitars, mandolins and (perhaps most shockingly) electronic keyboards, some of which were sold in the 1980s as "Casio synths."

Gouker plays and collects harmonicas. "I have boxes and boxes of them. They are kind of throwaway instruments which you play hard at the beginning of their life, then softer as you go on. I can't say I have ever found another brand of harmonica I like as much as Hohner – it has always been a cutting-edge company."

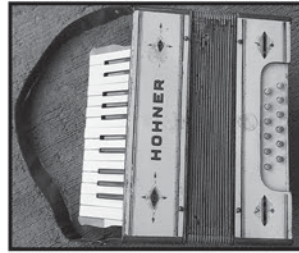

Gouker's box of harmonicas

"Even if you take good care of them, harmonicas usually last three years max, and some way less. If you buy the better ones, it's about $60-$70 apiece. Over the course of a lifetime, that's more than the cost of a piano."

Litman is also a fan of Hohner, specifically accordions. Two of his instruments are chromatic keyboard accordions – a style popular in Europe and Russia, often heard in European folk music – a genre Litman has enjoyed playing through the years.

"One of my accordions was given to me - accordion players tend to notice other accordion players," he notes dryly. "I got my other one in Queens through Craigslist in the 1980s or 90s. I bought it for $2,000 from a professional Ukrainian musician – he played that accordion beautifully."

Litman's smaller accordion

"I am always looking for an accordion with a perfect tone - Hohners have a lovely tone and the added advantage of a compact keyboard." He also owns several non-Hohner accordions. Traditionally made in Italy, accordions were crafted, "one-at-a-time, by hand – of wood, wax, leather, felt and metal. What the German company did was apply the principles of mass production."

Over the years, Hohner has made dozens of different harmonicas but Gouker has "almost always played variations of the original Marine Band model. To capture the tone of 30s, 40s, 50s blues masters, Marine Band's wooden comb is perfect."

Gouker admits to an obsession with the blues. "Playing the blues is not so simple as I originally thought. When you really start listening to the early masters - Sonny Boy Williamson, Rice Miller, Little Walter Jacobs - they all played Hohners and that's how they got that sound. It's what the old guys played. Since the early days Hohner has been progressive in making improvements. And right now, people are taking the instrument to new places!"

He stated that the CBS IT team is having difficulty automating the COVID-19 Dashboard to update as soon as data posted to the state site. He also relayed the vaccination rate system was built to account for a first and second dose, but the third and booster doses were affecting the numbers. He said the state was trying to correct it, but that in the meantime, there may be glitches.

DID YOU KNOW

That there is a teakettle whose whistle is actually a two-tone Hohner harmonica?

The science of making sounds for information-giving is really interesting. Different sounds, like colors, can enhance or muddy the message and provoke an emotional reaction. The first teakettle note is a 'b' and the second, higher note is a 'g.'

COVID-19 vaccines, stating that SEARHC had given 900 third dose/booster vaccine. She said SEARHC had completed over 1,200 flu shots as well. SEARHC is offering combined clinics for both the booster and flu vaccines two days a week, and that clinics would continue through the fall and winter, as Moderna and Johnson & Johnson booster vaccines become approved, as well vaccine approval for broader populations including pediatrics hoped by early November. She stated that the recommendation is to continue with the same vaccine brand.

Janelle Vanasse – MEHS reported mitigations seemed to be working well. She stated there were no positive COVID-19 cases currently on campus. She congratulated Region 5 and all the SE schools for requiring mitigation for sports, incl. those coming from outside the region. She said that a team was going to come to town, but because of testing requirements, they discovered several COVID-19 positive cases, which allowed them to take care of that and avoid spread.

Sitka School District - Superintendent Frank Hauser reported four currently active COVID-19 cases associated with SSD buildings (less than 0.4% of the total student population). He reminded parents to keep students home if they are sick or if anyone in the household or among close contacts has COVID-19-like symptoms.

Ultraviolet & Infrared Light

Ultraviolet and Infrared lightwaves (radiation) are part of the light spectrum.

They both fall beyond the range of visible light that humans can see.

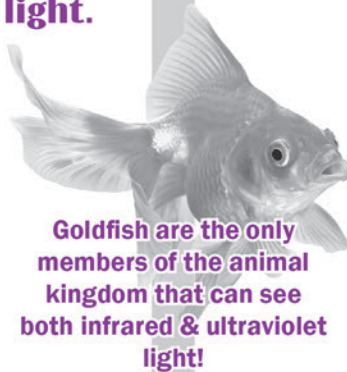

Ultraviolet light wavelengths are shorter and higher energy than visible light, while Infrared waves are longer and have a lower energy.

ULTRAVIOLET light is responsible for sunburns, despite Earth's atmosphere filtering out much the sun's UV light.

INFRARED waves are all around us every day. Human eyes cannot see it, but we detect it as heat.

Blacklights emit long-wave and very little visible light.

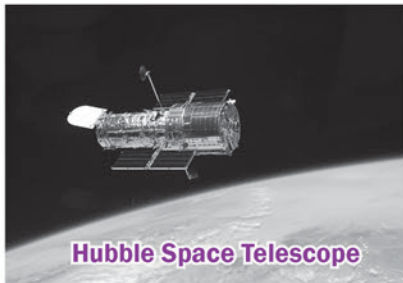

Goldfish are the only members of the animal kingdom that can see both infrared & ultraviolet light!

A remote control uses infrared waves to change channels & control game systems.

Telescopes with specially designed instruments gather ultraviolet light directly. These observations allow humans to analyze auroras on other planets, and identify areas of new stars in other galaxies.

Hubble Space Telescope

Half the energy emitted by the sun is infrared!

Infrared heat lamps emit both visible & infrared energy. From heating your bathroom, to night-vision cameras, to hatching chicks, humans put infrared to good use.
