IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Getting Ahead in College Before You've Even Begun

By Zoe Trafton

As a high school student, I think that dual enrollment classes through UAS are a fantastic way to get a head start on college. College classes have certainly challenged me in a more profound way than high school ones. For example, college classes provide a much fuller and more diverse workload than I am used to.

This past school year (my junior year), I took Writing Across Contexts (WTRG 111) in the fall semester and Writing and the Humanities (WRTG 211) in the spring. I found that there was much more peer interaction than in some of my high school English classes. For a lot of the essays, there were extensive peer reviews and peer editing. For example, in WRTG 111, there were weekly blog-like prompts where you responded to other students. We also had in-class discussions about our reading assignments. Our instructor was very engaged and gave detailed feedback to help us improve for the next draft.

"Writing Across Contexts" focuses on writing college-level essays on various subjects, while "Writing and the Humanities" was more geared toward analyzing literature. My instructor was really into ghost stories, so we read and analyzed stories in that genre. As in high school, the style of the class can vary depending on who's teaching it.

These classes had a lot of homework. For example, each week I had to read an average of three hours, and then spend another three to four hours working on the writing assignments.

UAS & Dual Enrollment

For the first time in my high school career, I had a significant amount of homework every night and, thus, had to develop a work ethic and time management skills.

Dual enrollment classes are an excellent way for a high school student to dip their toes into the metaphorical waters of college. Sitka High School and the UAS Sitka Campus work together to cover two-thirds of the tuition expenses for dual enrollment classes, so it's a cost-effective option for students who are motivated to work hard.

Post-secondary education can look like a daunting challenge for any high school student, and taking classes such as these can help a student ease into it. Had I not taken these classes during high school, I think I might easily have become overwhelmed by the reality check of college-level homework.

This way, taking college level classes - but only a class or two at a time - is certainly more manageable.

I cannot say enough good things about dual enrollment classes! They are a marvelous opportunity for any student, whether college-bound and looking to get a head start on credits, a student who may be unsure about college, or anyone looking for a challenge beyond what high school can offer.

Zoe Trafton is a rising high school senior who will be taking Introduction to Creative Writing (ENGL 261) and History of World Art (ART 261) from UAS in the fall 2023 semester. Ultimately, she plans to go to UAF and study either journalism or law.

"Many Things Under a Rock"AK Researcher Publishes Octopus Book*

Alaska Pacific University marine biologist David Scheel investigates four mysteries about octopuses. How can we study an animal with perfect camouflage and secretive habitats? How does a soft and boneless creature defeat sharks and eels, while thriving as a predator of the most heavily armored animals in the sea? How do octopus bodies work? And how does a solitary animal form friendships, entice mates, and outwit rivals? Hardback book published June 13, 2023. David Scheel, professor of marine biology at Alaska Pacific University, has researched the behavior and ecology of octopuses for over twenty-five years. He starred, with Heidi the Octopus and his daughter Laurel, in PBS's Octopus: Making Contact. He lives in Anchorage, Alaska.

Spike the Whale

The University of Alaska Southeast Mascot

Coloring Activity

Use your creativity to color Spike the whale, the UAS mascot.

Here in Southeast Alaska, in addition to being a symbol of wildlife and conservation, the Humpback Whale is the epitome of grace, intelligence, and natural beauty.

Spike lives at the UAS Rec Center in Juneau, and loves to greet visitors when they come to campus.

Word Search

Spike likes lots of things. Find and circle all of those things listed below.

Fill in the Blanks

Place the missing letters in the blanks below.

1. Spike the Whale is the UAS M_____.
2. _____K_____ loves to play dress up for university and community events.
3. Spike can be found exploring the UAS Juneau _____S_____.
4. In the Summers, Spike is on the W_____ paddle boarding or kayaking.

Spike is friendly but a little shy. Luckily, there is always a friend nearby to help Spike feel more confident.
