IN THE SPOTLIGHT

What does Indigenous People's Day mean to you?

The answers are as varied - and sometimes as surprising - as the people who gave them.

Coast Guard mother of two, moved to Sitka in 2023 to join her spouse who is billeted here:

Indigenous People's Day gives my family an opportunity to teach my son about the cultural history of Native Americans and their legacy.

David Kanosh's generous message to last year's IPD planning group:

The works of William Shakespeare, the epic sagas and legends of the Scandinavian nations, songs and legends of the Saami, the ancient myths of the Greeks and Romans. These are some things which I enjoyed throughout my life, and my life has been enriched greatly by these. Whatever your ancestral heritage may be, there is something... worth preserving and sharing. I ask that you remember and celebrate those good things from those ancient lineages.

*We can learn from each other.
We can uphold each other.
We can strengthen each other.*

Young man working at Sitka Ace Hardware:

IPD is a good time to acknowledge where you live - this is very important.

Health Care worker visiting from Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada:

We have one, too - an Indigenous People's Day - that's in June. A day of reflection to think about customs and suffering and steps for the future. We also have "Orange Shirt" Day - on Sep 30, same as the U.S. This is about remembering and honoring the lost First Nations children forcibly removed from their families. There have been in the past few years x-ray studies and archeological digs under the former school sites.

Long-time prominent Sitkan who was also born in Canada as a First Nations person:

A lot of the time (IPD) brings up family and is tinged with sadness. Especially because of the closeness to "Orange Shirt" Day. But it does make me happy that things are starting to come to the surface now.

From Wikipedia, about Canada's IPD:

National Aboriginal Day (National Indigenous Peoples Day) is a day recognizing and celebrating the cultures and contributions of the First Nations,

Inuit, and Métis Indigenous peoples of Canada. The day was first celebrated in 1996, after it was proclaimed that year... to be celebrated annually on 21 June.

From Wikipedia, about "Canadian Indian" residential school system:

In May 2021, remains believed to be those of 215 children were found buried on the site of the Kamloops Indian Residential School in Kamloops, British Columbia, on the lands of the Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation. The remains were located with the assistance of a ground-penetrating radar specialist and... the deaths were believed to have been undocumented...

On June 23, 2021, an estimated 751 unmarked graves were found on the site of Marieval Indian Residential School in Marieval, Saskatchewan, on the lands of Cowessess First Nation. Some of these graves predated the establishment of the residential school. On June 24, 2021, Chief Cadmus Delorme of the Cowessess First Nation held a virtual press conference. From June 2 to June 23 they found an estimated 751 unmarked graves.

Delorme went on to state, "...We are going to put names on these unmarked graves."

"Orange Shirt" Day:

Observed in both Canada and Alaska on September 30th - is also known in Canada as the "National Day for Truth and Reconciliation."

Día de los Muertos - Day of the Dead Celebration

Announced by CBS

The local Hispanic and Latinx local community is proud to present a Día de los Muertos/Day of the Dead celebration to remember and celebrate dead loved ones on Thursday, Nov 2. The celebration is a two-part event. Starting at 3:30pm, children and youth can enjoy crafts, face painting and reading at Sitka Public Library. Registered participants will receive a free book. The second main event will take place at the Sheet'ka Kwaan Naa Kahidi Tribal Community House, and it will start at 6pm. The public will be able to enjoy a traditional Altar de Muertos, music and traditional appetizers. All the events are free, and everyone is welcome. The 2023 Día de los Muertos celebration is sponsored by AmeriCorps Alaska, Friends of Sitka Public Library, Sitka Parks and Rec, Sitka Public Library, and University of Alaska Southeast. For more information or to register for the youth event call the library at (907) 747-4020. For food donations or information about the main event email anelfigueroa631@gmail.com.

KCAW: Cruise Visitor Initiative

Katherine Rose Piece on AK Public Media

On Tuesday, Sep 18, 2023, KCAW reporter Katherine Rose published a piece entitled "Sitkans push for vote on cruise visitor limits." The story begins like this: "As a record-breaking cruise season in Sitka comes to a close with the promise of another equally busy summer in 2024, some are wondering how the Southeast Alaska community can sustain its tourist boom." Read - or listen to - the story at alaskapublic.org or kcaw.org.

What's a community microsite?

We believe that access to financial services is crucial for a successful community. To meet this need in our Southeast communities, no matter their size or location, we created Community Microsites.

Tongass FCU collaborates with a local sponsor and the local community to build microsites. These communities invest in our not-for-profit financial cooperative by opening accounts and taking out loans. Tongass FCU invests back into these communities with local lobby hours, local financial services, local jobs, and financial education for members and schools.

FOOD ASSESSMENT

What would happen if barges supplying food stopped running? How are Sitkans coping with rising food costs? Does our community have the capacity to feed itself during a disaster?

If you have food-related thoughts or concerns, please take our Food Security Survey today!

The purpose of this survey is to better understand the economic challenges facing Sitkans. And the special role wild foods play in our lives, culture and well-being. This survey is part of a larger community-wide assessment to understand food security in Sitka.

Maybe you've had to make tough choices at the grocery store because of food prices? Or you've changed your diet because of budget restrictions? Or maybe you've worried about how someone in your life is getting enough food? Wherever you fall on the scale, your perspective and insight matters. Taking the Food Security Survey captures these important experiences. And it will help to bring resources into our community.

The last Sitka Community Food Assessment was done 10 years ago. A group of dedicated Sitkans are working to redo it. This is a joint project between Transition Sitka and the Sitka Local Foods Network with supporting partners at Sitka Tribe of Alaska Social Services, Sitkans Against Family Violence, Sitka Conservation Society, Sitka Public Library, Blessings in a Backpack, and UAF Cooperative Extension. You can support this work and your neighbors by taking the survey today!

Sound Science: Voices from the Ocean

This year we explore the theme of "sound" science from a variety of angles: using sound waves for communication within the ocean, how scientists use sound to study underwater ecosystems, diverse approaches of inquiry in our natural world, and connections to current research in Sitka Sound. Join us as we learn more about what is happening below the waves and celebrate the critical importance of SOUND science.

Trap by Young Performers Theater

A Thriller Play by Stephen Greg

Thursday & Friday, Oct 27 & 28, 7pm
Sunday, Oct 29, 2pm
at Odess Theater

An incomprehensible event: every person in the audience of a high school play falls unconscious - every person but one. Using interviews with witnesses, loved ones, first responders, and the investigators pursuing the case, a theatre ensemble brings the story of the strange event to life, documentary-style. But as the strands weave together into an increasingly dangerous web, it becomes clear that this phenomenon might not be entirely in the past. Unnerving, exhilarating, and wildly inventive, you've never walked into anything quite like Trap. This thriller play is recommended for ages 10 and up. Get tickets and learn more at fineartscamp.org.
