Our Town June 30, 2011

"The Soupster says here that he lost a rented movie in the parking lot and he was sure somebody stole it," Josh Mollison told his wife Mona, as he scanned the "Our Town" column he was reading. "And then somebody found the DVD and turned it in."

"That's mildly interesting," said Mona.

"Seems like the Soupster's last few stories all involved driving around," said Josh. "I'm worried that's all the man does anymore."

"You've just got trucks on the brain," said Mona, "and I know why."

"I was putting the boat in the harbor in April and that old Ford almost died on me, with the Bonnie V half on the trailer and half off and a line of other folks waiting to use the landing," Josh told Mona for the fourth or fifth time.

"That's got to be the tenth time you told me that," said Mona.

"Maybe twice," said Josh.

"Aw, Honey, I know you think you need a new truck, but we really can't afford it right now," Mona said. "You only really need a truck to get the boat into the harbor in the spring and out of the water in the winter. That's only twice a year you really need the truck."

"You don't understand, Sweetie," said Josh. "What if I needed to pull the boat out in the middle of season for repairs? Or what if Mike or Steve needed to pull theirs out and their trucks broke down?"

"It's a state of mind," he continued. "It's about freedom and being able to do all the things you need to do. I don't want to sound like Braveheart, but it's like part the whole being a man thing."

"There should be a truck rental, just for guys like you," said Mona. "Or a co-op. The truth is you only really need the truck twice a year."

Josh tried to change the subject. "Sometimes, the Soupster goes shopping in one of his columns and you go shopping," he observed.

"I went shopping today," Mona admitted.

"You don't have to feel guilty about it," Josh said.

"I don't."

"Show me what you bought?"

Mona broke into a broad smile and scurried out of the room. She came back a second later, beaming, pushing a fluorescent blue high-tech stroller capable of carrying three children at once.

"I don't want to pick a fight," Josh said, "but we only have one child. Isn't that a bigger stroller than we need for one child?"

"But what if we have more?" Mona said, "Or what if Jessica wants to leave Amber and little Gloria with me and I have to take Suzy to the dentist at the same time? It's about flexibility, Josh."

supervision and mentorship of Jan Straley, UAS assistant professor and Dr. Shannon Atkinson, professor UAF, and Sitka Sound Science Center staff, students will help prepare the bones from a 12' long killer whale and articulate the whale skeleton for public display at the Sitka Sound Science Center. The young killer whale was found dead on Kruzof Island in March of this year. This is a rare opportunity to work with a full killer whale skeleton. There are only five of these skeletons nation wide! Students will also learn about killer whale biology, the cultural importance of killer whale, and the role of the killer whale in the ecology of the Gulf of Alaska through guest presentations. Kayak Race Set

Registration is now open for the 5th annual Sitka Sound Ocean Adventure race to be held July 16. The event is opened to all human-powered crafts (kayaks, ocean canoes, rowing shells, warrior canoes, etc.). Race distances of 6, 14, and 20 miles will be offered. For more information or to register please visit http://sitkaadventure racing.org, or e-mail Andrew Miller at miller9@uoregon.edu. 58571

Swimmers & Kayakers Needed The 2nd Annual Sitka Sound Adventure Swim, hosted by local non-profit No Limits and the American Diabetes Association, will be held August 14, 2011. This is an open water solo or relay swim at distances of either 10k (6.2 miles) or 5K (3.1 miles). The swim is open to swimmers age 18 and older. Space is limited. Cost is $99/solo swimmer. An escort kayaker is required for each swimmer for safety. Minimal experience is necessary, but must be able to paddle 6.2 miles along side a swimmer. Those interested in either swimming or kayaking may contact Dave Nevins at ssaswim@yahoo.com or 752-0907 or Alyssa Sexton at alyssas@sitkahospital.org or 747-0388 54262
