Our Town

Feb. 28, 2013 Originally published April 10, 2008

Serious Business at the White E

At 6 p.m. Monday I was standing in line behind Secondhand Rose, Soupster and a dozen other regulars at the Church of the White Elephant waiting for it to open. We were singing "Praise be to the ladies of the White E, Jan and the holy clan, Lori of the hallowed window and Jeannie of the Monday ministry."

Well, it is not really a church but it does border on a religious experience to many regulars in Our Town.

One of the stalwart volunteers came around the corner with an armload of free books. She told me they have about 75 volunteers with an accumulated age of just over 64,000 years. Each one has a specialty such as pajamas, jewelry, t-shirts, men's boxers, Barbie dolls, books, front window display, and so on.

"The good gentleman that tests the electronic donations is prematurely gray. He had some bad luck working on home appliances rewired by an amateur. Now we call him Sparky. And did you know that this place has been in business for over 50 years now and all the proceeds go back into Our Town?"

"Yes, Soupster told me that. Just what kind of donations have you been getting lately?" I asked.

"Well, last week I found 11 cents in the watch pocket of a pair of levis, a moose hip bone, an African Masaii necklace, a Lionel Hampton T-shirt, a souvenir spoon from Toledo, a wig, and a half a loaf of bread. When folks are making a run to catch the ferry we get everything that won't fit in the trunk. A coffee pot was donated with a little coffee -- and the grounds were still warm -- and a roaster complete with turkey bones.

"One of the boxes was like an archeological dig. The top layer was a big, frumpy housedress, followed by big men's T-shirts and blue jeans, under that was a layer of toddler clothes and then baby clothes and then maternity clothes and on the bottom a size 6, red fringed, shimmery, sequined, strapless dress, high heeled shoes and frilly under things. It is fun to speculate on the history of some donations."

"Does the really nice stuff get snapped right up?" I asked.

"Not necessarily. If it is too glam or razzle dazzle for Our Town or too big to fit in small spaces or has only a decorative use it can hang around a long time. But they are the most fun to put on display. The Xtra Tufs last about a minute," The informative volunteer offered.

"I hear you can sometimes get original Gucci bags, Waterford crystal, White Stag sweaters, and leather biker pants for ten cents on the dollar."

"Oh, those are rare but it happens. Dumpster diving is the only place you can get things cheaper. Are you looking for anything in particular tonight?" she asked.

Oh, I have a list of things; a piece of fake fur, a teapot and a helmet."

"You shouldn't have a problem finding those.Do you need a yarmulke? One came in yesterday."

The doors were opening so we couldn't talk unless I wanted to be trampled. This was serious business.

Study Tlingit art, culture at UAS's Klukwan Summer Program Want to earn college credit while you study Tlingit arts and culture or outdoor recreation? The University of Alaska Southeast Sitka Campus will host its first Klukwan Summer Program on July 7-13. This week-long arts and Tlingit cultural camp takes place in the Chilkat Indian Village of Klukwan, Alaska, located 22 miles north of Haines and 100 miles northeast of Juneau. College credits are available in two programs, and professional development credit is available for teachers: • Salmon Camp -- students learn how to prepare salmon in the traditional way and carve a traditional canoe paddle (credit available for ART S285 Northwest Coast Carving and ED S593 Northwest Coast Salmon Cultural Camp). • "Lynn Canal Sampler" -- students get outdoors to explore the area with bikes and experience this beautiful part of Southeast Alaska (optional credit for PE S103 Outdoor

Hey I'm looking for a deck-hand job on a seiner out of Sitka this summer. I'm a 24 year old male with 5 years experience setnet/ gillnetting in Cook Inlet, one season crabbing Opilio in the Bering, and one season seining in Prince William Sound. References available upon request. I've got a setnet site up in Cook Inlet, but am looking at moving to Sitka to start school and get into a more reliable fishery. I'm an honest, hard worker, and would like to get onto a boat with people of a similar mindset. Give me a call: 970-420-3411 Ben Ad#44965
