Our Town March 27, 2014

The Soupster asks if there is ever anything new

"Always the same, this town," the Soupster muttered, reading the newspaper. "Always arguing over the same things. Paving the same roads, painting the same walls. The same people day after day. Can't anything be surprising?"

With decades of residency under his belt, the Soupster didn't entertain illusions about Our Town's complexion being blemish-free. But what great lover is put off by a few zits? While he might moan in private, publicly the Soupster deflected criticism from outsiders like any loyal lover of a place (or person).

But today the Soupster was bored and instead of taking ownership of his boredom, he decided to blame Our Town. "Same, same," he moaned. "Same, same, same."

Fresh air sounded good, the Soupster thought. "Shake off my cobwebs." This being herring season -- hence, herring weather -- the Soupster dressed in layers in case the present spectacular sunshine turned instantly to pounding hail.

Out the door down the road to the park went the Soupster, looking over the same sites he'd spied for years. He greeted a familiar face. He turned onto a trail he knew as well as the big vein on the back of his left hand.

While the herring spawn along the ocean's edge was a mere fraction of that 20 or 30 years ago, the air still reeked with a salty, springy maritime smell. "Uncle Milt," thought the Soupster. It was too early for new shoots, but the ground felt softer – ready to do something very soon.

A man leading a small black-and-white dog on a leather leash turned the corner of the trail. A strange dog – small and prowling like a cat. The closer the Soupster got, the stranger the dog looked – especially the prowling.

The small dog on a leash turned out to be a rather large cat on a leash.

"I trained him as a kitten," the man said as he went past. "Now he loves it!"

"That," said the somewhat delighted Soupster, waving, "is new to me. Yup, tom-cat-on-a-leash is a new one for me."

The sound of wheels turned the Soupster's attention to a woman pushing a high-tech stroller. The stroller contained an extremely hairy baby. The closer the stroller approached, the hairier the child looked.

With relief, the Soupster realized the hairy baby was a dog.

"She hurt her leg playing Frisbee and she really misses her walk," the woman said to the Soupster's puzzled expression.

"Thank you," said the Soupster.

"For what?" she asked.

"I was thinking everything in Our Town was `same, same, same,'" said the Soupster, more to himself. "I stand corrected."

YAMAHA MERCURY #1 On The Water

April 7th. The multimedia pieces that make up the exhibit celebrate the diversity of Alaskan wilderness and were created by artists from across the United States and the world, many of whom were artists-in-residence hosted by agencies that manage federally designated wilderness. This exhibit is sponsored by the U.S. Forest Service, National Park Service and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The traveling show was created to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the 1964 Wilderness Act. The exhibit displays artwork inspired by twenty different wilderness areas, including pieces from the nearby West Chichagof-Yakobi, South Baranof and St.Lazaria Wilderness areas. Come experience the wild beauty and varied perspectives of Alaskan wilderness. After Sitka, the exhibit will travel to six other Alaskan cities throughout 2014: Ketchikan, Juneau, Fairbanks, Homer, Kenai and Anchorage. Sitka National Historical Park is open Tuesday through Saturday 9:00 am to 3:00 pm. For more information please visit www.nps.gov/sitk/. Ad#11531 not have health insurance, now is the time to apply for affordable health care coverage. You may be eligible to receive assistance with your monthly premiums, co-pays and deductibles, depending on your income, age and number of people in your family. The Affordable Care Act deadline for signing up for insurance is March 31, 2014. Signing up is easy, and there are several ways to get support. You can call the national line at 1-800-318- 2596, 24 hours/day, 7 days/week. People with computers can go online to healthcare.gov, which is now working well. If you have made attempts in the past and had problems, it is a good idea to delete your old application and start again. In Southeast Alaska there are people available to assist you. SEARHC also has a hotline at 1-855-966-8684 with services based in Sitka and available to everyone Ad#86052

UAS will be offering a for-credit golf instruction class which began March 23 and continues through May 11. Taught by prize-winning golf instructor John Rennie at Sea Mt.n Golf Course Sunday afternoons The classes will start on the driving range, where John will guide students of all skill levels with their swing, stance, and golf fundamentals. Classes will then play a round of golf together, with John coaching students in all facets of the game. By taking this course, the golfers should become more consistent players, hitting with more accuracy and playing with better game-management skills so they can lower their scores. $179 for the 8 weeks of instruction, pl;us a $20 fee for balls For more information, contact Owen Kindig, Public Information Officer of UAS Sitka Campus.

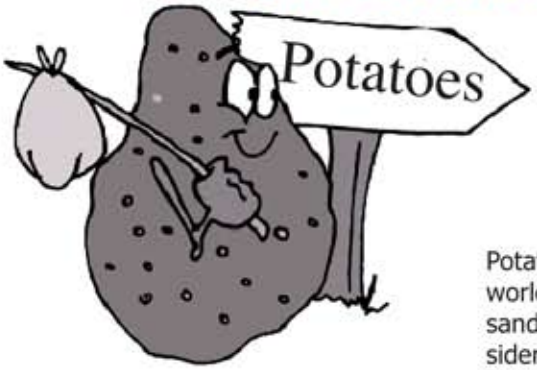
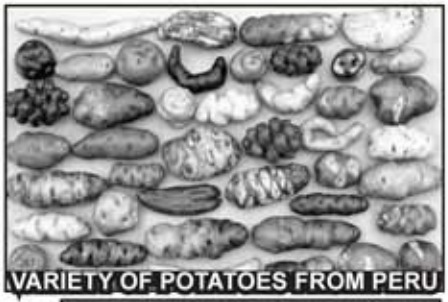
SITKA SOUP KID'SPAGE



POTATO PLANT

ONE WEIRD SPUD



VARIETY OF POTATOES FROM PERU

Potatoes are the fourth most popular food in the world -- after rice, wheat & corn • There are thousands of types of potatoes in the world • Peru is considered the birthplace of the potato and the people there eat many different shapes and sizes • Potatoes grow underground, which makes them able to grow in cooler weather • During the Alaskan Klondike Gold Rush, potatoes were almost worth their weight in gold • Because potatoes contain Vitamin C, eating them helped the miners stay healthy.
