Our Town Nov. 30, 2017

Originally published Dec. 4, 2008

The Soupster chats up a night owl -- well, not really an owl

Our Town is a tolerant place, the Soupster thought, but it takes time.

He thought about Vladimir, who was standing in front of him in line at the bank. Vladimir had first come to town with not much English, no money and strange nocturnal habits. But the foreign man stayed through a whole winter, the equivalent of a Bachelor's degree in Our Town, and after that people took him seriously, even if they kept their distance.

This afternoon, near closing time, Vladimir looked terrible – always pale, he now had enormous black circles under his eyes. He slumped forward as though his arms were too heavy for his shoulders.

The Soupster caught Vladimir's eye. "Gee, Vlad, you look awful," the Soupster said, "like death warmed over."

Vladimir chuckled, not altogether friendly. "Und you, Zoupster, you zmell like death needs a zhower," he said, in his strong accent. "But you are accurate. I am zleep deprived. I am too active."

Vladimir's nocturnal habits were well known to everyone – the man slept all day and stayed up all night. And on the edge of Solstice in Our Town, night occupied most of the clock.

"I'm sympathetic, Vlad," said the Soupster. "In the summertime -- when the days last nearly till midnight and start again a couple of hours later? -- I run myself ragged. It seems like every night at 10 p.m. or so, I think of some new project that needs doing that second."

"Yes, Zoupster," Vlad said. "Und you turn Zummer Zolstice upzide down und you get Vinter Zolstice."

"Or you're in Australia," the Soupster joked.

"Yes, you must jest, Zoupster," said Vladimir. "It is in your nature. As it is in mine to move across nearly the whole world. To come to the New World and leave my Old World ways behind." Vladimir lifted his arm to cover most of his face, leaving only his dark eyes.

The Soupster remembered that he found Vlad a touch over-dramatic. But he was glad to see the other man looking more alert and awake. Vlad moved to the front of the line.

"So what did you leave behind in the Old World, Vlad?" the Soupster asked.

"Now, my favorite drink is tomato juice," Vladimir answered with a dark laugh, exposing an impressive set of teeth. "With an egg well beaten into it!"

The teller free, Vladimir took his place at the counter. Although the Soupster's turn came a moment later, his business was briefer and the two men found themselves standing outside the bank at the same time.

The Soupster zipped his coat tight against his neck in the chill darkness. Vladimir's deep breaths came out in puffs of icy fog.

"Maybe you should take it easy this evening," said the Soupster. "Kick back."

"Oh, don't conzern yourzelf vith me, Zoupster," Vlad said with a wicked smile. "I am always groggy ven first I vake." Then he changed into a bat and flew off.

Sitka's Nutcracker, An Alaskan Tale, will be presented December 1,2,3 at the Performing Arts Center. This year the production takes place in Alaska. All the scenes and characters come from Alaska's past and present. You'll see crabs, herring, an eagle, a dragonfly, there will be a slime line, a tourist scene, can can girls, and so much more. There will also be the standards you've come to expect: the snow scene, the flowers, the Sugar Plum (Fireweed) Fairy, the Nutcracker himself. There is beauty and humor and fun for all ages. The performance lasts 1.5 hours. There will be a 15 minute intermission. Suitable for children of all ages – even the very young. There will be concessions at intermission – both food and gifts. Tickets available starting November 17th at Old Harbor Books as well as at the door. Adults - $20.00 Students/ Seniors - $10.00 Children five and under free Ad#37759f

Holiday Dinner

Holiday Dinners The Alaska Native Brotherhood Camp 1 and Alaska Native Sisterhood Camp 4 hosted the 43th annual community traditional Thanksgiving and will host this year's Christmas dinner at the ANB Founders Hall again this year where everyone is welcome. Volunteers are being sought to serve the meal, cook and food prep, set up and decorate the Hall, deliver dinners to the home-bound, and clean up. People are also needed to roast a turkey at home, which is provided with a roasting pan, and deliver it to the Hall, or have it picked up. Donated Native foods, hors d'oeuvres and desserts can also be brought to the ANS Kitchen at the Hall same time. Anyone interested in volunteering for these tasks or donating to the dinners can call Karen at 747-7803 or Debe at 738-4323, to be put on the list of helpers, or for any questions or further information.s dinners at the ANB Founders Hall again this year where everyone is welcome. A meeting for volunteers and all interested in helping at the Thanksgiving dinner will be held at the ANB Founders Hall on November 15th at 6:00pm. Thanksgiving dinner volunteers are being sought to serve the meal, cook and food prep, set up and decorate the Hall, deliver dinners to the home-bound, and clean up. conduct a Recreational Boating and Cold-Water Safety workshop in Sitka, at NSRAA, 1308 Sawmill Creek Road. Class will be Friday, December 8, 6:30 PM – 8:30 PM, Saturday December 9, 9:00 AM – 5:00 PM and Sunday December 10, 10:30 AM – 3:00 PM. This workshop is an excellent opportunity for both new and experienced boaters to gain general knowledge and important insights into boating in Southeast Alaska.

Instructor Mike Morris will cover the following topics: Weather & Tides, Navigation, Communications & Emergency Signals, PFD's & Safety Equipment, Anchoring, Float Plans, Pre-Departure Checklist, Man Overboard Recovery, and Hypothermia & Cold-Water Survival. The cost for the workshop is $120. Interested boaters can register online at www.amsea.org or call (907) 747-3287. Ad#1885a0

Ask the Realtor

"What is the 1st step I should take when I start looking for a home to purchase?"

Jenn Peterson
Realtor
907-738-1144

Purchasing your 1st home is exciting and overwhelming. Assuming you are not paying cash, the first thing you need to do is to find a bank you are comfortable with and get pre-qualified for a loan. Once you know the amount you are qualified for, you can start your search with your realtor in that price range. If by chance you are not yet qualified, your banker will guide you towards which steps to take to get qualified. Also, remember to have money set aside for out of pocket expenses as well.
