OUR TOWN

The Soupster encounters a mysterious, loving couple.

Jingling coins in his pocket, with a rose in his heart, the Soupster strolled along Lincoln St., rubbernecking appreciatively.

"Flâneuring in your own town!" he mused, and the friendly smile on his face caused a passing couple to smile back at him.

They all stopped, right there, to exchange names and chat. Maria and Marko were visiting Sitka for the first time and wanted to experience something other than the usual tourist things.

The Soupster agreed, and so to tune in to local life, he suggested they sit on the wall for a while.

"Come summer, these streets will be thronged with people from all corners of the world. The scent of Sitka roses will tickle your nostrils. Halibut cheeks and life-saving chocolate milkshakes will sell like hotcakes. High spirits'll roll out of the P. Bar like a flock of seagulls gobbling herring eggs in the spring. But in February – ah, February - it's dark, cold and rainy. Today's sunshine is not normal."

Just then, to prove his point, a pouting cloud obscured that improbable sun, so they rose and meandered on.

They admired the Pioneer Home's grace. When notes of a lively Slavic kolo drifted from Raven Radio, Marko danced a few steps. "Music from my homeland," he marvelled. His wife placed a loving, ebony-hued hand on his arm, and they danced together along the sidewalk. Their Serbian/Brazilian moves were sensual and heart-warming. "Not bad for octogenarians," thought the Soupster.

Nearing the ANB Hall, they saw posters announcing festivities for Elizabeth Peratrovich Day.

"Who?" gulped Marko.

"Oh, our famous Alaskan activist. Elizabeth Peratrovich. Ḵaaxgal.aat. A lionhearted Tlingit woman who refused to accept discrimination and injustice. Who worked and persevered, and in 1945 got an anti-discrimination bill passed in the Alaska territory, long before the rest of the country. Racial hatred and Jim Crow practices had plagued this land, and she bravely stood up for what is right.

"Why," he chuckled, "you know what she said when the white guy senators referred to natives as 'savages'? She took 'em right down.

She said, 'I would not have expected that I, who am "barely out of savagery" would have to remind gentlemen with five thousand years of recorded civilization behind them, of our Bill of Rights.'"

The trio reflected on the vagaries of human behaviour. Love should be able to conquer all, but sometimes people need to be reminded. To be reminded that hate should have no place in the constitution. As an inter-racial couple, Maria and Marko had faced their share of obstacles. As they rested, admiring the posters, Marko was suddenly weeping.

"From my own war-torn, tumultuous country to this chilly, beautiful land of eagles and ravens, home to this culture, this brave woman..."

He fell silent and the screams of eagles seemed to continue his story.

"My mother. Her maiden name was Peratrovich," he finally concluded in a whisper.

The Soupster stood there with his hands in his pockets. He no longer jingled the coins. Instead, he withdrew them, and placed them in Marko's hands.

Shining golden Elizabeth Peratrovitch dollars.

Sitka Spelling Bee 2021 - Wed., Feb. 24 from 7-8:30pm, Sitka Public Library and the Friends of the Library are hosting the Sitka Spelling Bee. We are providing early notice to give Sitkans an opportunity to find a partner and practice their spelling "chops." The event will be staged at the Centennial Building with the teams (either one or two persons each) socially distanced apart. There will be a host who will read the questions, a judge, and a timer. The event will be live on a Zoom feed so the public may watch. This is a fundraiser so teams will have an entry fee and several options for "lifelines" that will also cost them. For more info, contact Margot O'Connell at 747-4025 or at margot.oconnell@cityofsitka.org. Or contact Jeff Budd at 747-4821 or at jbudd3500@gmail.com. 1935ffdf5e77f444

Celebration 1982 Online at Sealaska - Sealaska Heritage Institute has put online video of the first Celebration, a dance-and-culture festival first held in 1982 that has grown into the world's largest gathering of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian people. The entire event is now viewable for the first time on SHI's YouTube channel. SHI has resurrected footage of one of the most important events in Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian cultures. President Rosita Worl said, "Celebration marked the first time all three tribes came together under one roof to show our cultures to the public. We had come out of an era of oppression, and at that first event, we were telling the world that our cultures had survived." Includes performances by 16 dance groups. SHI held the first Celebration "when the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian were in danger of losing knowledge of their ancient songs, dances and stories and the meaning behind the crests depicted on their regalia and clan at.óowu (sacred objects). It was held at the urging of Elders, who worried the cultures were dying after a period of severe oppression, during which time Native people did not sing their songs and dance their dances in public." Sitka Tlingit Artist Honored - Sitka-based Tlingit artist Michaela Sheit. een Goade has been honored twice recently. She was recognized at the end of Dec. for her "Google Doodle" design, depicting the Alaska Native heroine and political pioneer Elizabeth Peratrovich. Per a KTOO article about the Google Doodle written by Shayne Nuesca and Rashah McChesney, "The doodle went live in Alaska around 8 p.m. on Tues., Dec. 30 - the 79th anniversary of the day Peratrovich and her husband wrote a letter to the Governor of Alaska calling attention to signs on the Douglas Inn which read 'No Natives Allowed.'" Also, Michaela Goade (and author Carole Lindstrom, of the Turtle Mountain Band of Ojibwe) won a Caldecott Medal for their children's book "We Are Water Protectors." The Caldecott Medal is awarded annually by the ALA to the artist of the most distinguished American picture book for children. DID YOU KNOW

That Feb. 11th is National Don't Cry Over Spilled Milk Day

The saying 'don't cry over spilled milk' is an age-old proverb that has been around for hundreds of years. The first historical reference to the phrase appears in a document written by British historian James Howell in 1659. The saying most likely comes from European folklore. According to the old tales, fairies were particularly fond of milk and would drink up any spills left behind. To celebrate Don't Cry Over Spilled Milk Day, let bygones be bygones. Don't worry about the little things that are in the past, and instead focus on the wonderful things that are headed your way!

proposed Alaska Marine Highway System Schedule for May-Sept. 2021 is now available for public review at http://alaska.gov/go/Z9GC. Communities and interested people can review and comment on the proposed schedule through February 7, 2021. Due to the pandemic and continuing Canadian border closure, the proposed summer schedule does not include service to Prince Rupert. AMHS continues to work with the U.S. and Canadian governments on pre-clearance requirements and may add Prince Rupert service later. Written comments will be accepted via email at dot.amhs.comments@alaska.gov and by fax at (907) 228-6874. A teleconference to hear comments and consider adjustments is scheduled for Mon., Feb. 8 at 10am for the SE schedules, and at 1:30 p.m. for Southwest & Southcentral schedules. The toll-free number to participate in either teleconference is 1-515-604-9000, access code 279613. 7966010145a314be

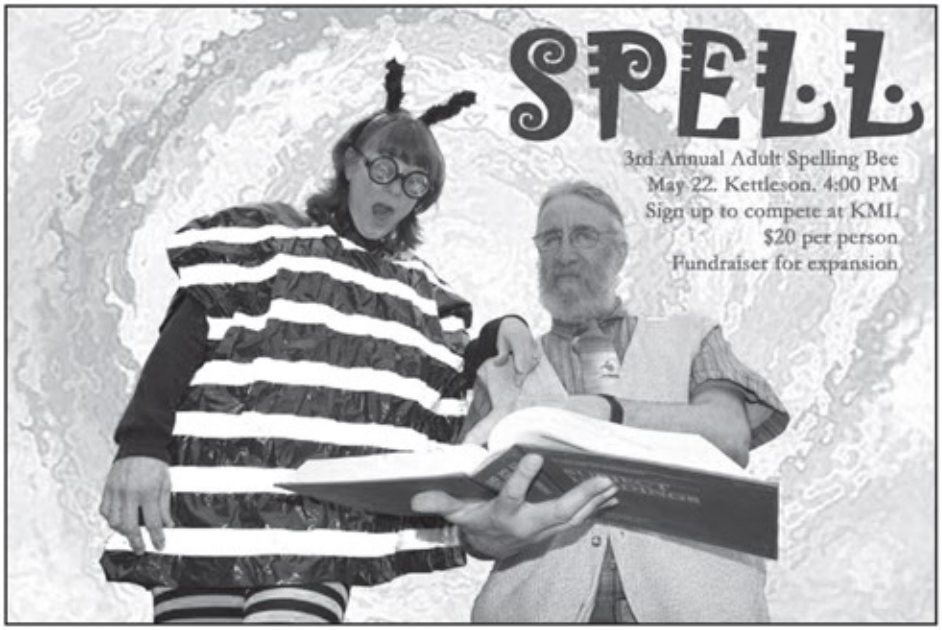
IN THE SPOTLIGHT THE SITKA ADULT SPELLING BEE



I recently spoke with Jeff Budd and Kari Sagel about the long and distinguished history – and 2021 reincarnation – of the Sitka Spelling Bee. The 2021 Bee will take place on Thursday, Feb. 24th, and Bee organizers are actively looking for contestants. New news: the first 16 teams to Register will have their registration fee paid by one of the 2021 Sponsors!

"The Bee started in 2009. Davey Lubin came to us with a desire to raise money to help another library in need, and Sarah (Bell, who was the library director at that time) came had the idea for the spelling bee." says Kari. "Us" is The Friends of the Library, which, together with the library itself, sponsors the Bee.

So, the 2009 Sitka Bee became a fundraiser for a library down in Guatemala through an organization called Probigua ("Proyecto Bibliotecas Guatemala" – a nonprofit that brings educational opportunities to rural children in Guatemala). You can read about their work at probigua.com/projects.html.

Another year, the Bee was in aid of Haitian libraries affected by the 2010 earthquake.

But where do the words come from? I asked Kari. "I and some other folks pick them out," she admitted. "It started with words I just liked or found intriguing. Then, over the years I came up with funny sentences for the words. Scripps (the national school spelling bee organization) is now doing this, which I find amusing," says Kari.

One year, Kari became fascinated with the word "talisman" and her sample sentence was, "He placed his lucky talisman so that it touched both of his bingo cards."

Sitkan Paul Norwood has also come up with words. Kari describes Paul as "a naturalist, nurse, and National Guardsman. French by birth. He is a great speller, no matter the language. Funny part to me is that the French language accounts for at least 30% of English words." Kari says one of the most memorable "Paul" anecdotes was "The French Debacle," in which many words were either French, or English derived from French. Needless to say, Paul won that one.

Kari's chart of past spelling words is a delight to behold, with word/pronunciation/sentence combos such as: Bungalow/buhng-guh-loh/She wanted to be the kind of girl who lived in a bungalow and had friends who wore berets. AND Piracy/pahy-ruh-see/Tom contemplated a life of piracy on the Bering Sea.

In more recent years, says Kari, Bee funds have been used for whatever the library needs, and to support "Babies and Books" and the "Imagination Library." The event, to her knowledge, has never before been broadcast and has actually not been done in the few past years, not since the library remodel.

The original Bee was at least partly the brainchild of one Jeff Budd, who – along with the eponymous Don Muller (as in one who mulls it over) – constituted "Team Zero." Says Jeff, "Don and I competed in all of the subsequent Bees, maybe six or so."

The 2021 Sitka Spelling Bee, says Jeff, will take place on Wed., Feb 24th from 7-8:30pm. The Bee – or at least the contestants – will be arranged in an enticingly masked, safe and socially distanced fashion – at the Centennial Building. Then, the event will be broadcast on Zoom for the edification of Sitkans (and others) who would like to view it.

The Rules for this year's Bee are shaping up to look something like this:

- A "team" consists of one or two people. The emtry fee is $20.00 per person* (*The first 16 contestants/teams to register will be underwritten by one of the Bee sponsors.)
- Robert Woolsey will be the host and give the words.
- Lifelines may be purchased to assist your team in spelling. Each team may use two lifelines during the bee. No lifelines will be used in the last two rounds.
  - $5 – Allows the team to Ask a Zoom Audience Member for help. They spell it once and then the team spells it correctly.
  - $10 – Allows 30 seconds to Call a Friend for help The 30 seconds starts at the end of the question or when the call is placed to the friend (??) Contestant(s) must get the spelling, hang up, and spell the word within the time.
  - $20 – Allows 30 seconds to Find the word in the Dictionary, close the book, and spell the word correctly. You may write on your hand with your finger, but not with a pen or other device.
- You may restart spelling but must repeat the letters already given exactly in the order they were first given.
- If no one in a round spells a word correctly, then everyone in that round comes back for the next round. To win the Bee, the last speller has to spell his/her own word and a championship word. If a speller misses the championship word, all the remaining spellers from the previous round will be reinstated.
- Contestants must wear a mask and practice social distancing as required by the Centennial Building.

People who wish to be in the Bee must contact Jeff Budd to Register.
People may call Jeff at 747-4821 or email jbudd3500@gmail.com.

When, I ask, can people start contacting Jeff? Immediately! Forthwith! ASAP! Pronto!

the following certificated airports in the State of Alaska: Adak; Anchorage International; Barrow; Bethel; Cold Bay; Cordova; Deadhorse; Dillingham; Fairbanks International; Gustavus; Homer; Juneau International; Kenai; Ketchikan; King Salmon; Kodiak; Kotzebue; Nome; Petersburg; Sand Point; Sitka; Unalaska; Valdez; Wrangell; Yakutat. Failure to comply with this mandate may result in removal and denial of airport entry. Individuals refusing to wear a mask in or on the airport property may be subject to penalties under federal law. Passengers and airport employees must wear a mask at ALL times while on airport property, except: When necessary to temporarily remove the mask for identity verification purposes; While eating, drinking, or taking oral medications for brief periods… For a complete listing of Exceptions to the Mask Mandate on federal property, go to www.tsa.gov or to SitkaSoup.com and click on the PSA titled "Federal Mask Mandate Announced Feb. 1."

Masks at Alaska Marine Highway - Federal mask mandate applies to ferries & terminals. CDC issued an order requiring persons to wear proper face coverings when using public transportation systems to help reduce the spread of COVID-19. Beginning Feb. 1 AMHS will comply with the federal mandate, requiring persons two years and older to wear proper face coverings while using facilities and traveling on vessels. To the extent possible, AMHS will make reasonable accommodation for a passenger who is unable to wear a face covering due to a disability. AMHS currently requires passengers & employees to wear masks. CDC order makes refusal to wear a face covering a violation of federal law.
